Feb 24, Alea rated it it was amazing. How do theistic evolutionists affirm that blind, chance-based processes are what created us – Shadow of Oz then deny that blind, chance-based processes are what created us? I have dedicated a chapter of my book, Shadow of Oz:
Or maybe if it hadn't been 45 years or so since I read the Oz books. Also the time!
But, what evolution is, whether the pattern or the process, is very fluid today. Collins made it clear that this was a very testable prediction.
For example, just do a search on PubMed. Kindle Edition pages. The rejoinder, no doubt, will be, look, God has revealed himself in two books, and Darwinian evolution gives an accurate account of the book of nature. I did enjoy the Shadow of Oz, and it's lead up to a future book, or continuing story.
