Modeling the dispersal and deposition of radionuclides: Source term evaluation from recent core-melt experiments. Such products may reside in the gap between the cladding and the fuel, if the cladding has been damaged, FP escape into the local atmosphere of the fuel rod, then FP macroscopically transported by the steam flow through the reactor core and primary . Unfortunately it is not known in what chemical form Cs was. Source term evaluation from recent core-melt experiments. Also because of less clear situation with Ba, Sr and Ru releases, Butland and Khulman assumed that these radionuclides are released as aerosols.

Ignoring these differences in chemical behavior of different radionuclides same interaction between jth atom and other atoms occurs until it gains its Z electrons and so on for n HIA forming the molecule. The DAB hypothesis shall have a special importance in nuclear safety and related fields.
